

Reading Classical Hebrew

Course Index

This Index covers Voicing Hebrew (its page, section §, and exercise Ex numbers are prefixed v), the supplementary material (its page numbers are prefixed s), and the First Hebrew Primer pages in Chapters 4-endmatter except for parts that are revised or replaced (its page, Chapter §, and exercise Ex numbers are prefixed p).

When a Primer page revision provided in the supplementary material is merely cosmetic (e.g., the addition of personal pronouns to a verb conjugation chart) I have cited the original Primer page in the Index; where the revision affects the exposition or a page is replaced, I have cited the supplementary material in addition or instead. In consulting a Primer page that is cited in the Index you may wish to check for supplementary material relating to that page in case your judgement about which should be cited differs from mine.

Vocabulary words are indexed only at their first occurrence unless they are explicitly discussed elsewhere. Words appearing in the excerpts from the Book of Ruth are indexed only if they also appear elsewhere, and words appearing in other Bible quotations are indexed only if they are listed there as vocabulary.

Particular fonts are used for transliterations, translations, and vocalizations, but the names of the Hebrew consonants, vowels, punctuation marks, verb patterns, and other linguistic apparatus are printed in Roman type. Sometimes the following abbreviations appear.

m	masculine	f	feminine	s	singular	p	plural
inf	infinitive	cmd	command	prt	participle	imp	imperfect

This course works for beginning students because of its selection and sequencing of topics and because of the gradual progression of its treatment from simple to sophisticated. These desirable features distance the course far from a systematic exposition of the subject, and this Index unavoidably reflects that fact.
